

Is the stock market still the place to be?

A few weeks ago we did a podcast that discussed what we would do when a stock market correction occurred.

This week we discuss how we handled the volatility, how our clients handled it, and what we think of the stock market moving forward.

In addition, we share some interesting statistics about volatility that will hopefully help you sleep better.

We also share our thoughts about the bond market, which, is . . . well, hopefully enlightening to those that love bonds.
