

Waiting for the dust to settle

In only 23 days, on March 23rd the S&P 500 was down -37%. The bear market hit hard and fast. The investor fear gauge hit the magical lowest number of one, and the economy shut down.

Since that day on March 23rd, the S&P 500 has jumped up 27.50%. Which means, with a shutdown economy, we are currently only down 13.5%!

The question remains – Is now still a good time to invest? Is the market going to fall again? Should we wait for the dust to settle to invest more cash?

Those are the questions discussed and answered in today's podcast. We hope you enjoy.

Here's to wise investing,
