

Waiting for the market to bottom?

The stock market has roared back the last month, despite horrible news from the press. The current sentiment in the market continues to be overwhelmingly bearish.

Almost everyone we talk to and hear on T.V. believes the market is going to fall.

Which leads us to pose the question, should we wait for the market to bottom before buying more stocks? Even after a 30+% positive move in the market?

That is the topic of the day! In today's podcast we talk about timing the market, the risk/reward of putting more money to work right now, and much more (including Michael Jordan destroying our dreams!).

Here's to wise investing,
