

What to do when the Market Finally Falls

The stock market has been on a tear...

. . . but at some point it's going to fall. When that occurs, what should investors think and what should they do?

In this weeks podcast, Brett Pattison (who is silently cheering for some market volatility) discusses two portions of a portfolio, stocks and options.

These two asset classes should be treated differently during a falling market. Click the link below to hear just how they should be treated . . .

Heres to wise investing,

Brett Pattison